

Monthly Comment

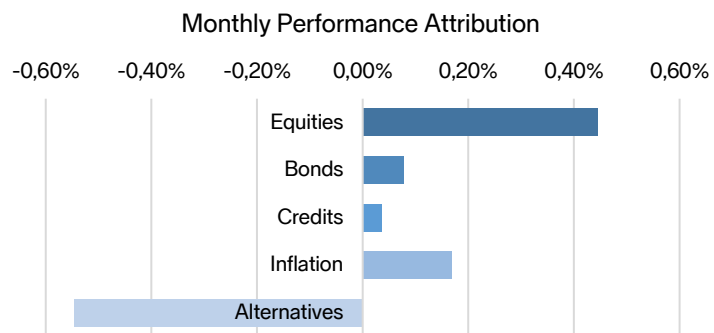

"June continued the rapid global recovery and marked the end of a record breaking second quarter. Central banks and governments has provided unprecedented amounts of stimulus and economies slowly started to reopen creating what now appears to be a v-shaped recovery. Developed markets were up almost 20% during the quarter closely followed by emerging markets climbing 18%. Risky assets had a very good quarter, but also safe-haven assets such as gold (+18%) and US treasuries (+9%) performed well.

Overall, markets has rallied on the back of both fiscal and monetary stimulus combined with global reopening of economies. However, global COVID-19 cases are increasing and governments might face a potential fiscal fatigue and potentially roll back their stimulus too soon. Furthermore, political risks are increasing with the US election coming up, BREXIT still unresolved, escalating tensions between China and the rest of the world and the growing risk of a rerun of the European sovereign debt crisis.

Smart funds saw a sideways monthly performance where all asset classes except alternatives contributed positively. Overall exposure is still very low due to the volatility spike in march and market risk higher than usual. Implemented changes last month is now in full place and equity indices tracked by the fund is now ESG-screened to remove exposure to companies lagging behind in matters concerning the environment, social responsibility and governance."
